VARIEDIES

White Adriatic. Large, skin greenish yellow. Pulp red; extensively planted for drying purposes.

Kadota. A white fig of medium size; rich flavor; one of the best for table uses; very prolific; trees bearing quite young.

Calimyrna. Large size, skin lemon yellow, pulp reddish amber, flavor and quality unsurpassed. To raise successfully it is necessary to have the aid of the capri fig to carry the fig wasp.

White Pacific. Medium to large, skin greenish yellow, pulp light yellow and very sweet, heavy bearer.

Brown Ischia. A medium size brown fig, Pyriform when fully ripe, of a deep brownish red color, trees especially valuable as a shade tree, its crown forming a fine umbrella, with densest shade.

Brown Turkey. Sometimes called "Brown Ischia." This is a very large fig, color violet brown, one of the earliest.
Brunswick. Extra large, short neck making it nearly round, skin bluish black.

Panacha. The most ornamental of all Fig trees, branches marked with green and yellow stripes, fruit medium size, pyriform, pulp sweet, fruit also marked with green and yellow stripes.

Rose Blanche. Fruit medium oblate, skin thin, deep purple, pulp deep red, valuable for table or drying.

Mission. (California’s Black.) The large black fig most common in California, a great grower and a heavy producer and one of the best. Ripens June and August.

Grise. Medium, oblong; no neck; skin light blue; pulp rose color, very sweet, excellent for the table.
Cernica. Fruit medium, skin deep purple, pulp deep carnation red, trees of drooping habit.

Verdal Longue. Fruit large turbinate, skin green when ripe, pulp carnation red, color very rich, trees of drooping habit.

Black San Pedro. Very large, no stalk, skin violet black with green neck, pulp red, one of the largest; excellent for the table.

White Smyrna. A compact grower of spreading habit, thin skin, greyish green color, an excellent table fig.

White Celest. A very small fig of amber color, fine for preserves.

Caprifig. Must be grown in connection with the Calimyrna (Smyrna) fig. Plant in groups by themselves, very desirable as a shade tree, the ratio being one Capri to twenty-five Smyrnas.
